New Lenox Scene of Road Building Activity

New Lenox is showing a beginning of road building activity with the arrival of part of the State road builders, who are hauling cement to the big storage house east of the village, along the Wabash railroad. Crushed stone and sand have also been hauled. Work on the concrete road will begin as soon as the weather permits.

Next Tuesday the village primary will be held at Frankfort. Only one ticket is in the field. Following are the candidates:

For village president, Max F. Haase; for village trustees, B. A. Zechlin, Frank Eisenbrandt and Fred Marti.

ONE MAN KILLED 6 INJURED IN COLLAPSE OF GRAVEL PIT TRESTLE NEAR NEW LENOX

One Public Service lineman was killed and six other linemen were injured, Saturday, when a trestle work at the new gravel pit being opened south of the Lew Gouger place, along the M. C. railroad, toppled over as the linemen were engaged stringing wires from the power line onto the trestle. As the men all had on their safety straps, they could not jump out of the falling trestle's way, and were trapped.

The injured men were removed to a Joliet hospital, where the man who was most seriously injured died Sunday morning.

Faulty construction is said to have caused the trestle to fall over.

The accident, it is said, will delay work on the Lincoln highway thru New Lenox for a month, as the contractor was to get his stone from this pit.

A vein of gravel 60 feet thick was discovered last fall, and a Joliet company purchased the land from Lew Gouger and had a gravel washing structure erected.

Coming Events

Annual stockholders' meeting, Frankfort Grain Co., will be held at Frankfort hall, March 15th.

The Ladies Aid of the Frankfort M. E. church will conduct an Irish Social at the W. C. Owen home, on the Lincoln highway, the evening of March 16th. Everyone is welcome. The guests will meet at the Frankfort M. E. church and go by auto.

Coming? Sure! To the Cafeteria Supper at the Worth M. E. church. It will be Friday, March 16th, at 6 p. m. Don't plan to eat and run, or you'll miss the fun. The young folks are planning some stunts that would start Barnum and Bailey on the war-path. We predict that if half of the things the scientists say of the influence of laughter on digestion are true, that the gastric juice will be flowing freely. No extra charge for the fun. In other words, Mr. and Mrs. Worth will be "At Home," so bring the family and spend the evening.

St. Patrick's day dance at Saenger hall, Tinley Park, March 17th. Arbor and Bird Day, by proclamation of Gov. Len Small set for April 18th.

Dedication of new $55,000 St. John Evangelical church at Mokena on Sunday, April 15th. Three services, morning, afternoon and evening, will be held. Hundreds of visitors from neighboring congregations are expected.

Primary election Frankfort, on Tuesday March 13.

Orland Looks For Boom This Spring

With the opening of Spring, Orland will team with activity. The construction of the concrete road will mean a lot of employment. So far four carloads of cement have already been received, and more material will soon arrive. Active work on building the road will start soon, as all danger of frost is past, and the ground has dried sufficiently to permit the hauling of material. Soon as the concrete road is finished, Orland will be linked up with a direct concrete route to Blue Island, Chicago, Tinley Park and other towns. The building of the viaduct underneath the Wabash railroad north of here will require considerable work.

A number of new residences are also to be constructed this Summer, so that Orland will have a chance of developing in growth this Summer.

INJURED BY FALL ON ICY WALK

Mrs. M. Hall, residing on the former McCarthy farm north of Mokena, slipped and fell on an icy walk one day last week and injured a knee cap. She has been confined to bed.

Relatives of Tinley Family Die In Odd Accident

Mr. and Mrs. George Keuch of Tinley Park attended the funeral of the Kratzberg family, relatives of Mrs. Keuch, held in South Chicago, Wednesday. This family of six were all asphyxiated early Monday morning in a peculiar accident. They resided in a flat above a restaurant. The restaurant owner had been troubled with roaches, and fumigated the place to kill the roaches. The fumes penetrated the Kratzberg flat thru a waste pipe, killing the entire family.

Orland Milk Plant Being Rebuilt

The Dowd Milk Co. of Chicago, whose receiving station, known as the old creamery building, was destroyed by fire last week, has started rebuilding operations. The contract for the new building was awarded to Mr. Phillips of Oak Lawn. He has a big force of men on the job, and the new building is expected to be ready for service within a few weeks. In the meantime a fleet of trucks has been hired to haul the milk daily to Chicago until the new plant and motor truck are in operation again.

Not Asking For Increased Rates

The Public Service company of Northern Illinois today made the following statement relative to the hearing before the Illinois Commerce Commission:

"There appears to be some confusion concerning the meaning of the hearing in progress before the Illinois Commerce Commission in Chicago.

"The company is not asking for increased rates.

"The facts are these: In 1920, The Public Service Company, on its showing of greatly increased operating costs, was authorized by the commission to put into effect a schedule of advanced rates, being the rates that are charged at present, except that the rates for gas have since been reduced. The object of the present proceeding is simply to determine whether or not the existing rates are equitable both to the company and customer.

"In the hearing now being held, the commission will weigh all factors in the situation, such as cost of operation, etc. Naturally the company is interested in having its rates as low as is physically possible, as this permits of a wider and increased use of its services. The result is that it is anxious at all times to give customers the benefit of any savings which may be possible through either declines in price of material entering into production or increased efficiency in operation on the part of its properties."

Will Mokena Get Concrete Road?

Mokena has had several rumors of having an opportunity of getting a concrete road thru the village by way of Marti street, running north and south in the west end of the village. This road connects with the Lincoln highway. The News-Bulletin is in receipt of a letter from Senator R. J. Barr regarding the matter. Senator Barr states that the present plan being worked on is to have a concrete road from Chicago to Kankakee, connecting with the Joliet-Kankakee road at a point four miles east of Wilton Center. Senator Barr has had the matter up several times with the Cook county officials, but they do not know just where their road will strike Will county. It is understood that Frankfort is also working quietly to get the road concreted running north and south, which runs toward Orland and lies about two miles east of Mokena.

Mrs. Miller of Tinley Hurt In Auto Crash

While Mrs. Miller of Tinley Park was driving in Blue Island Friday morning a large car collided with her auto, damaging the front of the car. Mrs. Miller was slightly injured.

Tinley Factory Changes Hands

The former wash machine factory at Tinley Park has changed hands again. Barney Geis of the Montana Tractor Co., later owners of the property, arrived Friday from Wisconsin and offered the property, consisting of 5 acres of land in addition to the factory building, for sale. The property was sold to a Tinley Park man Wednesday, but who the new owner is or the consideration was not divulged by the parties interested.

Rev. Rompel Gives Live Wire Lecture At Mokena M. E.

Rev. Rompel, of the Ottawa street M. E. church of Joliet, widely known as "Dad" Rompel, gave one of the best lectures ever heard in Mokena, when he spoke at the Mokena M. E. church Saturday night, as his subject "America's Forward Look." To say he was good is putting it mildly, for he was great, and everyone present was fascinated by his wonderful address.

He showed in graphic terms that what America needs to preserve this nation as the forefathers had wished it to be, is to get back the spirit of the old fathers. We need inspiration and co-operation. The parents of today are the ones on whom rests the responsibility of the future. The youth of today must be trained aright and made good citizens of in order that the future generation will be such that America can be proud of. He showed that the spirit of co-operation is needed in the little towns, and that if anything exists in the town that cannot be co-operated with, then it is time to remove it.

On Friday evening Rev. T. K. Gale, superintendent of the Joliet-Dixon district, will give a number of readings, and Miss Edith Mays of Chicago, noted Chautauqua worker, will furnish the musical part of the program of the third of series of eight lectures at the M. E. church.

Mokena's $55,000 Church Will Be Dedicated Apr. 15

Plans are now fully under way for the dedication of Mokena's new $55,000 church, when the new St. John Evangelical church will be formally opened on April 15th. A full and extended article on the new church, the dedication program, etc., will appear in The News-Bulletin soon. Rev. Geo. H. Sieveking of Missouri and Rev. Boshold of Manheim, Ill., will take part in the dedicatory services. A great gala day is anticipated when the new edifice will be dedicated to the worship of God.

Last Sunday pictures were taken of the congregation and of the new church, which are to be used in illustrating the pictorial and historical album which this church will issue before the dedication. This work will contain the whole history of the church, as well as many interesting pictures.

Following the dedication of the new St. John Evangelical church, there will be a great deal of church activity in Mokena. A big Brotherhood convention of the Evangelical Brotherhoods of the Monee pastoral district is slated to be held at the new church some time in May. Fully 500 men, members of the Brotherhoods of Monee, Grant Park, Chicago Heights, Frankfort, Blue Island and other places are expected to attend the convention. In September the Sunday school convention of the district will be held.

The young folks of this church are planning to present a number of plays the early part of Summer.

Mr. Preller of Palos Park Passes Away

Mr. Adolph Preller, well known former resident of Palos township, died Sunday, Feb. 25th, at noon, following a short illness.

Mr. Preller was born in Germany, and came to this country when three years old, when he moved with his parents to Palos township, where he lived until fourteen months ago, when he moved on a farm southeast of Lemont, having sold his old home to the forest preserve. He attained the age of 72 years. He was a man who was always interested in the welfare and betterment of his family and community.

Surviving him are his widow, two sons—Albert, of Palos, and Edward, of Worth; two daughters—Mrs. Fred Hildebrandt, of Worth, and Mrs. Henry Braasch, of Lemont; five grandchildren, one sister, Mrs. Ketke, of Lemont; and one brother, Albert, of Montana.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 28th, at 1 o'clock, from the late home to the St. Matthew's church, and this large edifice was too small to hold the many hundreds of persons who came to pay their final tributes of respect to the deceased. Rev. Lorthman officiated. Burial took place in St. Matthew's cemetery.

A MAN WHO BECAME FAMOUS

Doctor R. V. Pierce, whose picture appears above, was not only a successful physician, but also a profound student of the medicinal qualities of Nature's remedies, roots and herbs, and by close observation of the methods used by the Indians, he discovered their great remedial qualities, especially for weaknesses of women, and after careful preparation succeeded in giving to the world a remedy which has been used by women with the best results for half a century. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is still in great demand, while many other so-called "cure-alls" have come and gone. The reason for its phenomenal success is because of its absolute purity, and Dr. Pierce's high standard as an honored citizen of Buffalo is a guarantee of all that is claimed for the Favorite Prescription as a regulator for the ill-peculiar to women.

MISS LULU BETT

By ZONA GALE
Copyright by D. Appleton & Company

Next day there came a message from that woman who had brought up Dwight—"made him what he was," he often complacently accused her. It was a note on a postal card—she had often written a few lines on a postal card to say that she had sent the maple sugar, or could Ina get her some samples. Now she wrote a few lines on a postal card to say that she was going to die with cancer. Could Dwight and Ina come to her while she was still able to visit? If he was not too busy.

Nobody saw the pity and the terror of that postal card. They stuck it up by the kitchen clock to read over from time to time, and before they left, Dwight lifted the griddle of the cooking-stove and burned the postal card. And before they left Lulu said: "Dwight—you can't tell how long you'll be gone?"

"Of course not. How should I tell?"
"No. And that letter might come while you're away."

"Conceivably. Letters do come while a man's away!"

"Dwight—I thought if you wouldn't mind if I opened it—"

"Opened it?"

"Yes. You see, it'll be about me mostly—"

"I should have said that it'll be about my brother mostly."

"But you know what I mean. You wouldn't mind if I did open it?"

"But you say you know what'll be in it."

"So I did know—till you—I've got to see that letter, Dwight."

"And so you shall. But not till I show it to you. My dear Lulu, you know how I hate having my mail interfered with."

She might have said: "Small souls always make a point of that." She said nothing. She watched them set off, and kept her mind on Ina's thousand injunctions.

"Don't let Di see much of Bobby Larkin. And, Lulu—if it occurs to her to have Mr. Cornish come up to sing, of course you ask him. You might ask him to supper. And don't let mother overdo. And, Lulu, now do watch Monona's handkerchief—the child will never take a clean one if I'm not here to tell her. . . ."

She breathed injunctions to the very step of the bus.

In the bus Dwight leaned forward: "See that you play post office squarely, Lulu!" he called, and threw back his head and lifted his eyebrows.

In the train he turned tragic eyes to his wife.

"Ina," he said, "It's ma. And she's going to die. It can't be. . . ."

Ina said: "But I'm going to help her, Dwight, just being there with her."

It was true that the mere presence of the man would bring a kind of fresh life to that worn frame. Tact and wisdom and love would speak through him and minister.

Toward the end of their week's absence the letter from Ninian came.

Lulu took it from the post office when she went for the mail that evening, dressed in her dark red gown. There was no other letter, and she carried that one letter in her hand all through the streets. She passed those who were surmising what her story might be, who were telling one another what they had heard. But she knew hardly more than they. She passed Cornish in the doorway of his little music shop, and spoke with him; and there was the letter. It was so that Dwight's foster mother's postal card might have looked on its way to be mailed.

Cornish stepped down and overtook her.

"Oh, Miss Lulu. I've got a new song or two—"

She said abstractedly: "Do. Any night. Tomorrow night—could you?"

It was as if Lulu were too preoccupied to remember to be ill at ease.

Cornish flushed with pleasure, said that he could indeed.

"Come for supper," Lulu said.

Oh, could he? Wouldn't that be . . . Well, say! Such was his acceptance.

He came for supper. And Di was not at home. She had gone off in the country with Jenny and Bobby, and they merely did not return.

Mrs. Bett and Lulu and Cornish and Monona supped alone. All were at ease, now that they were alone. Especially Mrs. Bett was at ease. It became one of her young nights, her alive and lucky nights. She was there. She sat in Dwight's chair and Lulu sat in Ina's chair. Lulu had picked flowers for the table—a task coveted by her but usually performed by Ina. Lulu had now picked Sweet William and had filled a vase of silver gilt taken from the parlor. Also, Lulu had made ice cream.

"I don't see what Di can be thinking of," Lulu said. "It seems like asking you under false—"

She was afraid of "pretenses" and ended without it.

Cornish savored his steaming beef pie, with sage. "Oh, well!" he said, contentedly.

"Kind of a relief, I think, to have her gone," said Mrs. Bett, from the fullness of something or other.

"Mother!" Lulu said, twisting her smile.

"Why, my land, I love her," Mrs. Bett explained, "but she wiggles and chatters."

Cornish never made the slightest effort, at any time, to keep a straight face. The honest fellow now laughed loudly.

"Well!" Lulu thought. "He can't be so very much in love." And again she thought: "He doesn't know anything about the letter. He thinks Ninian got tired of me." Deep down in her heart there abode her certainty that this was not so.

By some etiquette of consent, Mrs. Bett cleared the table and Lulu and Cornish went into the parlor. There lay the letter on the drop-leaf side-table, among the shells. Lulu had carried it there, where she need not see it at her work. The letter looked no more than the advertisement of dental office furniture beneath it. Monona stood indifferently fingering both.

"Monona," Lulu said sharply, "leave them be!"

Cornish was displaying his music. "Got up quite attractive," he said—it was his formula of praise for his music.

"But we can't try it over," Lulu said, "if Di doesn't come."

"Well, say," said Cornish shyly, "you know I left that Album of Old Favorites here. Some of them we know by heart."

Lulu looked. "I'll tell you something," she said; "there's some of these I can play with one hand—by ear. Maybe—"

"Why, sure!" said Cornish.

Lulu sat at the piano. She had on the wool chally, long sacred to the nights when she must combine her servant's estate with the quality of being Ina's sister. She wore her coral beads and her cameo cross. In her absence she had caught the trick of dressing her hair so that it looked even more abundant—but she had not dared to try it so until tonight, when Dwight was gone. Her long wrist was curved high, her thin hand pressed and fingered awkwardly, and at her mistakes her head dipped and strove to make all right. Her foot continuously touched the loud pedal—the blurred sound seemed to accomplish more. So she played "How Can I Leave Thee," and they managed to sing it. So she played "Long, Long ago," and "Little Nell of Narragansett Bay." Beyond open doors, Mrs. Bett listened, sang, it may be, with them; for when the singers ceased, her voice might be heard still humming a loud closing bar.

"Well!" Cornish cried to Lulu; and then, in the formal village phrase: "You're quite a musician."

"Oh, no!" Lulu disclaimed it. She looked up, flushed, smiling. "I've never done this in front of anybody," she owned. "I don't know what Dwight and Ina'd say. . . ."

They rested and, miraculously, the air of the place had stirred and quickened, as if the crippled, halting melody had some power of its own, and poured this forth, even thus trampled.

"I guess you could do 'most anything you set your hand to," said Cornish.

"Oh, no," Lulu said again.

"Sing and play and cook—"

"But I can't earn anything. I'd like to earn something." But this she had not meant to say. She stopped, rather frightened.

"You would! Why, you have it fine here, I thought."

"Oh, fine, yes. Dwight gives me what I have. And I do their work."

"I see," said Cornish. "I never thought of that," he added. She caught his speculative look—he had heard a tale or two concerning her return, as who in Warbleton had not heard?

"You're wondering why I didn't stay with him?" Lulu said recklessly. This was no less than wrung from her, but its utterance occasioned in her an unspeakable relief.

"Oh, no," Cornish disclaimed, and colored and rocked.

"Yes, you are," she swept on. "The whole town's wondering. Well, I'd like 'em to know, but Dwight won't let me tell."

Cornish frowned, trying to understand.

"Won't let you?" he repeated. "I should say that was your own affair."

"No. Not when Dwight gives me all I have."

"Oh, that—" said Cornish. "That's not right."

"No. But there it is. It puts me—you see what it does to me. They think—they all think my—husband left me."

It was curious to hear her bring out that word—tentatively, deprecatingly, like some one daring a foreign phrase without warrant.

Cornish said feebly: "Oh, well. . . ."

Before she willed it, she was telling him:

"He didn't. He didn't leave me," she cried with passion. "He had another wife." Incredibly it was as if she were defending both him and herself.

"Lord sakes!" said Cornish.

She poured it out, in her passion to tell some one, to share her news of her state where there would be neither hardness nor censure.

"We were in Savannah, Georgia," she said. "We were going to leave for Oregon—going to go through California. We were in the hotel, and he was going out to get the tickets. He started to go. Then he came back. I was sitting the same as there. He opened the door again—the same as here. I saw he looked different—and he said quick: 'There's something you'd ought to know before we go.' And, of course, I said, 'What?' And he said it right out—how he was married eighteen years ago and in two years she ran away and she must be dead, but he wasn't sure. He hadn't the proofs. So, of course, I came home. But it wasn't him left me."

"No, no. Of course he didn't," Cornish said earnestly. "But, Lord's sakes—" he said again. He rose to walk about, found it impracticable and sat down.

"That's what Dwight don't want me to tell—he thinks it isn't true. He thinks—he didn't have any other wife. He thinks he wanted—" Lulu looked up at him. "You see," she said, "Dwight thinks he didn't want me."

"But why don't you make your husband—I mean, why doesn't he write to Mr. Deacon here, and tell him the truth—" Cornish burst out.

Under this implied belief, she relaxed and into her face came its rare sweetness.

"He has written," she said. "The letter's there."

He followed her look, scowled at the two letters.

"What'd he say?"

"Dwight don't like me to touch his mail. I'll have to wait till he comes back."

"Lord sakes!" said Cornish.

This time he did rise and walk about. He wanted to say something, wanted it with passion. He paused beside Lulu and stammered:

"You—you're too nice a girl to get a deal like this. Darned if you aren't."

To her own complete surprise Lulu's eyes filled with tears, and she could not speak. She was by no means above self-sympathy.

"And there ain't," said Cornish sorrowfully, "there ain't a thing I can do."

And yet he was doing much. He was gentle, he was listening, and on his face a frown of concern. His face continually surprised her, it was so fine and alive and near, by comparison with Ninian's loose-lipped, ruddy, impersonal look and Dwight's thin, light-boned hardness. All the time Cornish gave her something, instead of drawing upon her. Above all, he was there, and she could talk to him.

"It's—It's funny," Lulu said. "I'd be awful glad if I just could know for sure that the other woman was alive—if I couldn't know she's dead."

This surprising admission Cornish seemed to understand.

"Sure you would," he said briefly.

"Cora Waters," Lulu said. "Cora Waters, of San Diego, California. And she never heard of me."

"No," Cornish admitted. They stared at each other as across some abyss.

In the doorway Mrs. Bett appeared. "I scraped up everything," she remarked, "and left the dishes set."

"That's right, mamma," Lulu said. "Come and sit down."

Mrs. Bett entered with a leisurely air of doing the thing next expected of her.

"I don't hear any more playin' and singin'," she remarked. "It sounded real nice."

"We—we sung all I knew how to play, I guess, mamma."

"I use to play on the melodeon," Mrs. Bett volunteered, and spread and examined her right hand.

"Well!" said Cornish.

She now told them about her log-house in a New England clearing, when she was a bride. All her store of drama and life came from her. She rehearsed it with far eyes. She laughed at old delights, drooped at old fears. She told about her little daughter who had died at sixteen—a tragedy such as once would have been renewed in a vital ballad. At the end she yawned frankly as if, in some terrible sophistication, she had been telling the story of some one else.

"Give us one more piece," she said.

"Can we?" Cornish asked.

"I can play 'I Think When I Read That Sweet Story of Old,'" Lulu said. "That's the ticket!" said Cornish.

They sang it, to Lulu's right hand. "That's the one you picked out when you was a little girl, Lulu," cried Mrs. Bett.

LESSON FOR MARCH 11

JESUS IN GETHSEMANE

LESSON TEXT—Luke 22:39-48, 54.
GOLDEN TEXT—Christ also hath once suffered for our sins, the just for the unjust, that He might bring us to God.—1 Peter 3:18.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Matt 4:1-11; 26:23-46; 1 Cor. 10:13; Heb. 4:15, 16.

PRIMARY TOPIC—An Angel Helps Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Prays for Strength.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Stand the Hardest Test.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Submission to the Father's Will.

1. Jesus at the Mount of Olives (v. 39). He went from the upper room under cover of night to the garden of Gethsemane. Gethsemane means oil press. It is a place where the oil was crushed out of the olives. There is a striking significance in Jesus' coming to this place. Olive oil was precious, being used both for food and lighting. The bruising and crushing of Christ in this garden has yielded the largest blessings in the world. It has provided food for men's souls and light for their lives.

11. His Companions (vv. 39, 40). Peter, James and John, who had been with Him on the Mount of Transfiguration, were permitted to go with Him into the deep shadows of the garden. He took those who were best able to apprehend the meaning of the tragic hour to be His sympathizing companions. This was needed to prepare them as His witnesses. Then, too, as a human being He craved sympathy.

Jesus Praying (vv. 41-44).

1. He Withdrew From the Disciples (v. 41). Even these disciples of the "inner circle" could not go with him. He tore himself away from them for He must be alone in this darkest hour. He knelt down and prayed.

2. What He Said (vv. 42-44). "If thou be willing remove this cup from me." The cup did not mean the physical sufferings of the cross, though they were very great. He did not now desire to escape from the cross and thus stop short of His redemptive work, for this was the supreme purpose of His coming into the world (Heb. 2:14). It was rather the revelation to Him by the cross which loomed before Him, of His identification with sin in becoming the world's Redeemer. By virtue of the holiness and perfection of His nature, He could do nothing else than shrink from it. He saw in this bearing of the sins of the world the turning away of His Father's face. Knowing what was before Him, He came to Gethsemane for this hour, and in it He consciously brought his human will into accord with the divine will. Though the cup was bitter he bowed in submission to the Father's will. So great was this agony that His sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground. In this crucial hour an angel from heaven strengthened him.

IV. The Disciples Sleeping (vv. 45, 46). They had boasted of their fidelity, but could not watch with Him for an hour. He had issued a word of warning to them, but they were so benumbed with sorrow that they failed. He gently rebuked them, and commanded that they rise and pray lest they enter into temptation.

V. Jesus Betrayed (vv. 47, 48).

1. The Betrayal (v. 47). This was done by Judas, one of the twelve. He had enjoyed the most intimate relations with the Lord, eating with Him, listening to His teaching, witnessing His marvelous miracles and enjoying His confidence.

2. The Sign of Betrayal (v. 47). It was the kiss, the token of the most tender affection and friendship. He now degrades it by making it the token of disloyalty and treason. Jesus' words to this infamous disciple shows the infinite tenderness of His heart. If Judas had been at all human this pathetic appeal would have smitten him to the very heart. How many professing disciples have proven their disloyalty to the Master and even betrayed Him. All who bear the name, Christian, and especially ministers and teachers who deny the virgin birth, Deity and vicarious atonement of Christ are following in the footsteps of Judas. May each one inquire, "Lord, is it I?"

VI. Jesus Arrested (v. 54).

The multitude around with swords and clubs led by Judas invaded the sacred precincts of the garden and arrested Jesus and brought Him before the high priest.

Indianapolis, Indiana.—"Now I want to tell you just what induced me to take your medicine. It seemed that I had some kind of weakness so that I could not carry a child its full time. The last time I was troubled this way I had a nervous breakdown and was a complete wreck. The doctor thought I would not live, and if I did that I would never be well and strong again. But I told them I was going to get well, that I was not going to die just then. My husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took six bottles of it. I soon got strong again and had three more children. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound ever since, and if you could see me now you would think I had always been well."—Mrs. MARY F. Plant Growth and Sunlight.
Recent experiments show that the amount of light that a plant has affects its growth fully as much as climate. The iris, for example, which ordinarily blooms in May or June, would not bloom under hothouse conditions in winter until its period of daily light was artificially lengthened by six hours. The October chrysanthemum was made to bloom in midsummer by shortening the daily light period; lettuce by the same means was held in the rosette stage for a long time; and the radish, with only seven hours of daylight, grew for more than a year before it finally shot up its flower stem and died. —Youth's Companion.

The Pilgrim's Dwelling-Place

By DR. HENRY OSTROM
Extension Department, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—His soul shall dwell in goodness. —Psa. 25:13.

Rented rooms, hotels, and homes are all lodging places. From the storm, the cold, or the heat, we are there wrapped in a real or an imaginary shelter. They are to us what a fortress would be in war, or what a sheltered harbor would be after the stormy voyage. Our Scripture for today tells of our having a lodging-place called "Goodness." O, such a place, whether by night or by day, "his soul shall dwell in goodness."

Said Jesus to the rich young ruler, "Why callest thou me good, there is none good but One, that is God." It is from such teaching that we come to know who alone possesses goodness, and consequently, who alone can provide the dwelling-place for the soul. This home-nest for the soul cannot be of human construction; it is a bestowed lodging, located in the heart of Him who alone is good. It is not ours to be the architects or the builders; rather it is ours to be the dwellers. When will we consent to believe in provided righteousness, provided goodness and a provided home for those who accept our Lord Jesus Christ?

We live in a world of distress and tears. What a contrast between our soul's lodging and the neighborhood! When attacked on all sides by fierce and subtle enemies the soul takes refuge in the goodness of God. Just as a schoolboy runs home when too closely pursued by a group of attacking boys, conscious of his parents' protection and feeling an almost infinite contrast between it and the schoolboy world. We may prefer surroundings that are apparently more peaceful and safe, but who can hold back the raging floods of circumstances? Rather let us escape. Let us hide in goodness when the neighborhood rocks with badness. He who provides the lodging alone can control the circumstances. Thus, too, can we lend the best influence toward improving the immediate surroundings.

But think of a sinner coming to feel at home in goodness! The dread of change gone. The fondness for self will abandoned. Hatred of iniquity substituted for love of sin! The man who lodges in goodness must possess a fondness for holiness. The thought of even approaching God consciously may have been a dreaded thing for years, but now it has been made congenial. The change is a miracle. Yesterday "in the tents of wickedness," today "in the secret place of the Most High." Yesterday out of the way, today in the place of rest! Is it not goodness indeed that a saved sinner while on earth is designated "in the heavens in Christ Jesus?"

One may be a stranger vainly calling at the post office in a foreign land for mail, but at the same moment be at home with God. There is more than a slight hint of the cure for homesickness here. For, who could want a better, a lovelier, a safer lodging than our text promises? "Pilgrims and strangers on the earth?" Yes, but pilgrims at home while going home. When you come to see that the literal meaning of the Psalm is "He that dwelleth (by day-time) in the secret place of the Most High shall have a night's lodging under the shadow of the Almighty" you grasp its meaning. God's goodness now, God's goodness tomorrow, God's goodness on earth, God's goodness in heaven; this is the program for those who will accept the one outstanding token of his goodness, the gift of His Son for our sins. Goodness! There is a sense of soundness in the word. Goodness! It savors of prosperity, cleanness, safety, love! The longest stretch of the strongest imagination cannot picture it that a poor, lost, homeless sinner should be so changed that he lodges in the goodness of God. It takes faith to grasp that. It took revelation to disclose it. And a sense of being at home wherever duty calls on earth is in it. My soul shall never again say that it is homeless.

You wish to communicate with me, then. You ask for my city. You desire to know my street and the number of my house. You inquire, do I live in the valley or on the hill? My address is four words; it answers your inquiry. It is "The Goodness of God."

There is many a true tale told in jest.

ENGINEER SAYS IT IS WORLD-BEATER

"My Digestion Is Sound as a Dollar Since Taking Tanlac," Declares Buffalo Citizen.

"There is no doubt about it, Tanlac does all they claim it will do—and more," was the positive statement made recently by Richard H. Lawson, well-known engineer, of 1007 Elmwood Ave., Buffalo, N. Y.

"I used Tanlac for a combination of troubles and it put me in splendid condition all the way round. First, I had a bad case of stomach trouble, was simply chock full of sourness and gas, had a general distressed feeling and a burning pain in my stomach that I couldn't get rid of. With my appetite wrecked and digestion gone, I became awfully weak, nervous and run down and could get scarcely any rest or sleep at all."

"Tanlac answered every demand made upon it in my case and today my digestion is sound as a dollar. I have an immense appetite, and with every ache and pain gone, I am sleeping fine and feeling strong and energetic as of old. Tanlac is 100% good."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35 million bottles sold.—Advertisement.

IN LIGHT OF EXPERIENCE

Some Few Things That a Wife Admits She Has Learned From Her Husband.

He really can't advise me as to taking the leadership of a relay of girls who belong to the Girls' Souday club. They carry a little kit and a basket of canned things, and go off on long hikes and picnics in lovely woody places.

The lady who has charge of all the relays says it is awfully hard to get grownup leaders and she thinks that with my personality the girls would just love me; and you don't have to know much to be a leader.

The girls will tell you how. She said that a rich girl belonged to the club, and her mother had to coax her to eat the very daintiest things at home; and after she had taken a ten-mile hike she ate sausages, just as the other girls did.

And her leader felt that it was awfully while-work for anyone. The girls give lovely concerts to raise money to pay for having the concert tickets printed.

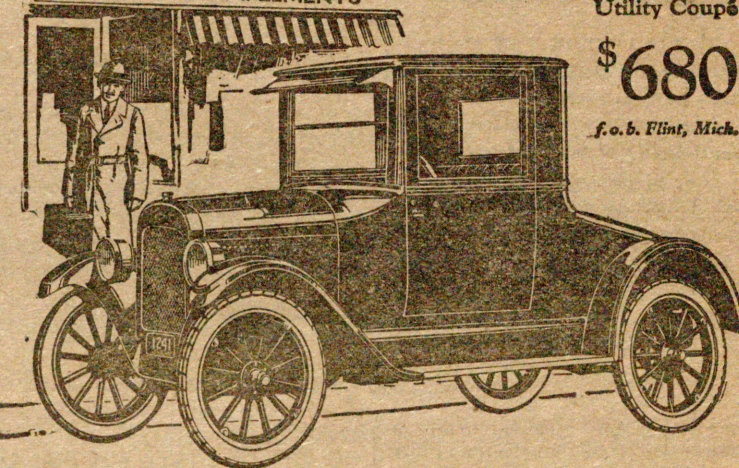

And they are banded together to do good, and they ask everybody to please help them in their work.

My husband says that years ago when he was a boy women used to marry men before they began to ask them for money.—Life.

SIMPLE EXERCISE FOR EYES

Worth Remembering When One Has Begun Forced to Overwork the Organs of Vision.

Turn the eyes upward as far as possible, then downward. Alternate, each five times. Turn the eyes to the right as far as possible, then to the left. Alternate, each five times. Turn the eyes upward obliquely to the right, downward obliquely to the left. Alternate, each five times. Turn the eyes upward obliquely to the left, downward obliquely to the right. Roll the eyes from right to left, making a complete sweeping circle, five times. Roll the eyes from left to right, making a complete sweeping circle five times. You can increase the number of times each exercise is performed. Close the eyes tightly, then open, alternating five times. Close the eyes and gently rub your fingers over the lids, rubbing from the nose outward. These exercises are simple and easy.—Los Angeles Times.

Business Foresight.

Overheard at the drugstore: "John," said the druggist to his assistant, "how is the stock of lint and bandages?" "Got plenty, sir," replied John. "And arnica—got plenty of that?" continued the druggist. "Yes, sir, plenty," returned the clerk. "Our stock of salves, lotions and broken-bone remedies is complete, is it not?" "Yes," said John, "we have a good stock of all of them." "Very well," concluded the druggist, "it looks as though it would freeze tonight; you had better go out and wash down the steps."

Girl's Frank Statement Must Have Been Somewhat Disconcerting to Her Accepted Husband.

"Those men remind me of an anecdote. A young chap had proposed to a beautiful girl. The girl, blushing and weeping a little, had accepted him. He folded her in his arms, pressed his lips to hers and whispered:—"

"Dearest, is this the first time you have ever loved?"

"Yes," the girl sighed, "but it's so nice that I hope it won't be the last."

Modesty.

"My brother," began the serious-minded person, "I have a great task before me."

"What is it?" asked Mr. Dubwalte, suspiciously.

"Uplifting the human race."

"I have no doubt you can do it," replied Mr. Dubwalte, as he edged off, "but I'm such an important member of the human race that I'm sure you'll get no particular credit out of uplifting me."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Find What CANADA has to offer YOU!

If your dream of success seems like a hopeless ambition, if you are discouraged trying to get ahead on high priced land, if your present location fails to give you opportunity, there is a new deal for you, a new chance in the fertile, virgin farms of Western Canada, where wheat produces 20 to 40 bushels to the acre, where the 1922 crop was biggest in history, where oats, barley and hay and fodder crops are the basis of a great dairy industry, and a man's work brings him success and prosperity.

Low Priced Land—the Last Great West

In Western Canada you still can buy virgin prairie land at $15 to $20 per acre, on long terms if desired, near to town, railroads, etc.—land such as has for many years produced the world's prize winning wheat, oats, barley, flax, rye, alfalfa. Canada had no "war time" land boom; prices are not inflated—you get in on the ground floor.

Taxes Favor the Farmer as Values Increase

The tax laws of Western Canada encourage the producing farmer. The tax on land is reduced when it is brought under cultivation—while on your buildings, machinery, improvements, personal property, automobile, there is no tax at all. A single crop is often worth more, acre for acre, than the cost of the land.

Rent Now—Buy Later Pay Out of Profits

Canada welcomes the industrious settler. What you have now isn't so important. If your capital is small, or you cannot sell your present holdings to advantage, rent a fertile Canadian farm and "try it out" for a season or two. Make a good living, increase your capital, and buy later. Farms may be rented from successful settlers on easy terms in some cases with option of purchase.

Buy on Exceptional Terms—32 Years to Pay

For the benefit of those wishing to buy land a national non-profit sharing organization—the Canada Colonization Association—has been established with head office at Winnipeg, and United States office at St. Paul. This Association offers selected land convenient to railroads—much of it at $15 to $20 per acre—on very small cash payment; no further payment until third year; balance extended over thirty years, but purchaser may pay up and obtain title at any time if desired. Interest six percent per annum on deferred payments.

TINLEY PARK

An old man known as "Char-ey," who is employed by F. A. Harper, had a narrow call from death Wednesday morning. He had been talking with Henry Nieman, the crossing flagman, and started to cross the tracks as an east-bound fast passenger train was approaching. Mr. Nieman shouted a warning to him, as did several other bystanders, but the man kept on going. He had just stepped over the outer rail as the train whizzed by, the cylinder head of the engine barely missing the man by 3 or 4 inches from striking him.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Keuch of Tinley Park was found dead in bed Tuesday morning. The child had not been well for a few days, but seemed to be improving. The parents have the sympathy of their many friends in this tragic affair.

FARMERS GAIN BY STOCKYARDS WAR

Slash in Selling Charges Means
$500,000 Yearly to Producers.

PRESENT RATES TOO HIGH

Progressive Live Stock Company
Makes 40 Per Cent Reduction
After Exchange Fails to Act on Protests.

Chicago.—A saving to the agricultural interests of the United States of half a million dollars each year may be the outcome of a rate war which broke out among commission men in the stockyards here with the announcement by the Progressive Live Stock Company of a 40 per cent reduction in their charges for handling live stock in carload lots.

The Progressive Company took the bull by the horns after a committee named by the Live Stock Exchange several weeks ago to consider the question of a reduction had failed to act. The appointment of the committee followed protests from every section of the country against the high charges for selling live stock. At the time the committee was named it was freely predicted that the matter would die in the committee, and the failure to make a report has angered many of the commission men who fought for its appointment.

The farmer is paying nearly five times as much to commission men as he did during the war, in proportion to what he gets for his live stock, according to a statement issued by John Burke of the Progressive Company, composed of veteran dealers at the yards.

"Before and during the war a carload of hogs worth $3,500 was sold for $12," said Mr. Burke. "The present price of hogs is about 33-1/3 per cent of their wartime value, but the commission on a carload of hogs now worth about $1,300 is $16 and $18. Commissions for selling cattle show the same glaring increases. The farmer could have paid the higher charges during the war, but now every dollar he can save on the expense of marketing his live stock will help him in his fight to get back on a sound financial basis.

"Another charge we have decided to eliminate is the $2 a car for pro-rating, made when two or more consignors have live stock in the same car. Under the old rates an extra charge of $2 was made for dividing the proceeds of the sale among the shippers. This is a mere matter of bookkeeping and the commission man should absorb this charge.

"Protests against these high rates have been pouring into the Live Stock Exchange for months, and became so strong that a committee was appointed to consider a revision downward. Together with many other commission men who feel that the rates are too high, we have been waiting patiently for some action, but the committee has done nothing, and so far as we can learn has not even held a meeting. We have taken the lead in an effort to get the commission charges down to a basis fair to the farmer, who must also pay heavy freight and feed charges."

Practically every car of stock sent to the Chicago yards is consigned to some commission firm, the percentage consigned direct to the packers or Eastern shippers being almost negligible.

This State Sets New Example for Nation

FRANK PAGE
Chairman, North Carolina Highway Commission

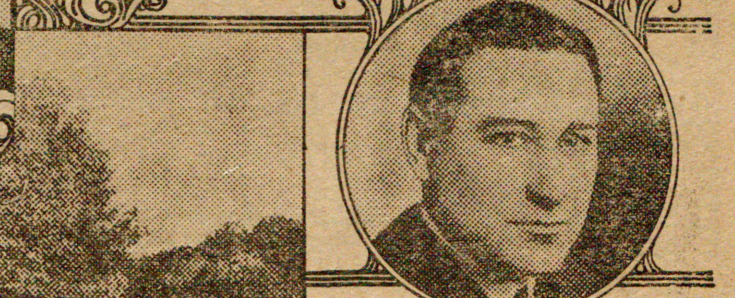

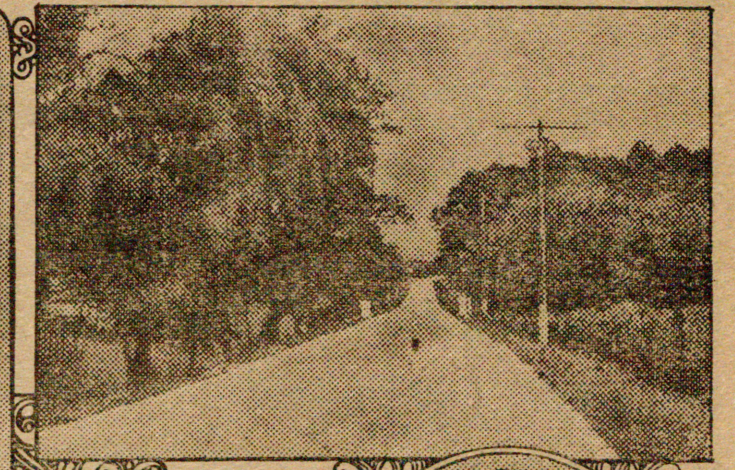

By GEORGE HITZLER

SO striking have been the accomplishments and so unique and advanced the methods used, that the work of the North Carolina State Highway Department is attracting national attention. All State road building records for mileage of new roads let to contract and constructed have been shattered.

With a $50,000,000 State highway bond issue passed last year, the purpose was to take over, construct and control 6,500 miles of hard surfaced roads and the highway department set a mark of 1,000 miles to be constructed this year. Already the total exceeds 1,300 miles. No other State has approached this record in the time.

Frank Page, brother of the late Ambassador to England, Walter Hines Page, was placed at the head of the new highway department, and Charles M. Upham, formerly Chief Engineer of Delaware, was made State Highway Engineer. Under this leadership a remarkable organization has been built. The proceeds of the huge bond issue were stretched another $10,000,000 by salvaging old war materials obtained from the War Department. Among the material obtained from the Government was a radio equipment, which the highway department uses to keep constantly in touch with its large corps of inspectors and contractors throughout the State.

A school for inspectors at Raleigh has already had the result of instructing the corps in the latest scientific Country roads and yet in this single year the State has awarded contracts for over 500 miles of pavement equal to the best in New York City. These are opening up beautiful sections hitherto inaccessible to the motorist, especially the mountain section around Mount Mitchell, the loftiest peak east of the Rockies.

The ingenious adaptation of methods to special local conditions is notable. Through the construction of what is known as sand asphalt along the seaboard, it was necessary only to bring in asphalt. Others, called "progressive types," consist of first building a sand-clay or gravel road and allowing it to compact under traffic and then to place wearing courses in proportion to the importance of the road and the funds available. Between the low-cost, unimportant roads and the modern high types of asphalt and other hard surfaces there was developed a "mosaic veneer type," where small stones are placed by hand on a sand-clay base, the voids then filled with asphalt and the pavement then covered with sand and rolled, forming a modified macadam and coating less than ordinary water-bound macadam.

"D. D. D." is the title of the Highway Department's house organ. It is said to mean "Do it—Damn it—Do it."

Typical New Carolina Road

tific information pertaining to highway construction and materials. A monthly magazine is published to keep the people of the State reliably informed of progress and even a "house organ" is published more frequently for inter-communication of ideas among the army of people directly engaged in the work of construction. Additional means to keep the morale at the highest pitch are occasional "Pep" meetings at which the enthusiasm of the officials is personally conveyed to employees, while the latter have free opportunity for making suggestions to officials. It is estimated that millions have been saved by these methods.

Not alone in mileage let but in the types of construction is the North Carolina example conspicuous. It has only been in recent years that the city pavements of sheet asphalt and asphaltic concrete have been constructed on

150,000 New Camp Fire Girls To Be Welcomed on March 17

Slogan for the Birthday
Week Is:
Double Your Health,
Double Your Love,
Double
Camp Fire.

MRS. OLIVER HARRIMAN

MRS. OLIVER HARRIMAN, national president of Camp Fire Girls, is prepared to welcome 150,000 new members into the organization on March 17. Camp Fire Girls will give a nation-wide birthday party on that day, celebrating it with a Grand Council Fire in every village, town, city or rural community where there is a single Camp Fire group.

At this time each Camp Fire Girl will bring one new member to the Council Fire as her special birthday gift. It is her duty to teach the new member the law of Camp Fire, and help her make her ceremonial gown.

The slogan for birthday week which begins Sunday, March 11, continues through March 17, is, "double your work, double your health, double your love, double Camp Fire." The program is based on these three things, work, health, and love, symbolized in the three candles burned at the Grand Council Fire, Honors for the year's work will be awarded and a message will be read to the girls from Mrs. Harriman. "Camp Fire was organized eleven years ago on March 17," Mrs. Harriman says. "During these eleven years more than 700,000 girls have been members. Many of these are now alumnae as they have passed their eighteenth birthday. Some of them have daughters who will soon be old enough to be Blue Birds, the junior division of Camp Fire Girls."

"We want these older girls to come back for the birthday Council Fire and to show their interest by bringing new girls into the organization, by interesting women who are qualified to be guardians and by helping to double Camp Fire."

Mrs. Harriman announced recently that Camp Fire has spread to seventeen other countries, and that 2,082,572 honors were won last year by the 150,000 members in the United States.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

HELP YOURSELF

EVERYTHING beneath the sun is available to the deserving, so reach out your hands and help yourself.

To be worthy you should be patient, industrious, persevering, charitable toward the weak, respectful to the strong.

You must overcome foolish pride and envy; be not afraid to soil your hands, but a veritable coward when it comes to the point where you are called upon to smudge your soul.

Go forth with a heart full of faith and a joyous countenance.

Do not grumble if you happen to be in the lower ranks.

Think of the great men of today who came up from humble places and won distinction, whose names are written across the lands and seas in flaming letters.

Hold faith high above your head. Let its unfailing torch illuminate your path all through life, and march on assured that the goal you have set your heart upon is just ahead.

Do not falter if your road should be difficult and your burden wearisome.

Difficulties are common obstacles

No one can get anything worth while without overcoming them.

Affluence and power have their beginning in small things, both capable of being won by well directed thought and effort.

They belong to the capable who are qualified to use them in the right way, not to the doubting, inefficient and wavering, but to the courageous, the steadfast, who never admit defeat nor turn their faces in the darkest hour from the sun of faith, shining always on every cross and care.

If you would help yourself to the best there is, keep track of your faults. If inclined to procrastinate, take a lesson from the tides, the revolving earth, never delaying or hurrying.

Be methodical, even though it may in the present day of haste and confusion, be considered old-fashioned.

Train your mind to remember what your eyes see; keep your brain sensitized so that the impressions made upon it shall become permanent pictures to which you can turn when they may be needed.

Only what you can recollect in the vital moment is of any use to you, and in that moment if you should fail to remember, your whole future might be blighted.

Has Anyone Laughed At You Because —

By ETHEL R. PEYSER

You are quiet in a crowd? Haven't you suffered torture to see others get away "with murder," while you are scared pink to say anything at all? Haven't you often longed to say something to make the bunch laugh? Haven't you wondered, why you were included so often in the doings when you were so quiet and every one said, "Speak up, who's going to hurt you?" Cheer up, if you haven't got anything to say. Keep still. Too many spoil the air saying stupid stuff, or bad stuff, or hurtful stuff. It is good to be able to be amusing; there is nothing more wonderful than to amuse. But how many do anything when they sputter, but confuse? They say still waters run deep. You may be interesting for this reason.

SO

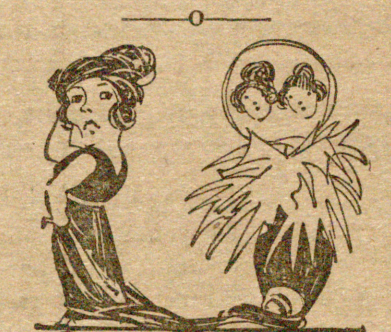

Your get-away is:

You have as much right to speak as anyone else—but if you've nothing to say you are right to "shut up."

Uncomfortable Magnificence.

Perhaps the most extraordinary of all beds was the gift of a Russian emperor to the Shah of Persia. Made entirely of crystal and surmounted by a chandelier, this monument of discomfort bore automatic fountains whose plashing lulled to sleep the "uneasy head" that wore the crown.

"How well Kate keeps her age." "Why shouldn't she? None of her friends wants it."

Your New Home

should be made artistic, sanitary and livable.

These walls should be Alabastined in the latest, up-to-the-minute nature color tints. Each room should reflect your own individuality and the treatment throughout be a complete perfect harmony in colors.

The walls of the old home, whether mansion or cottage, can be made just as attractive, just as sanitary, through the intelligent use of

Alabastine

Instead of kalsomine or wallpaper

It is absolutely necessary if you expect Alabastine results that you ask for and secure Alabastine.

Avoid kalsomines under various names and insist on the package with the cross and circle printed in red. That is the only way to be sure you are getting the genuine Alabastine.

Alabastine is easy to mix and apply, lasting in its results, and absolutely sanitary.

Alabastine is a dry powder, put up in five-pound packages, white and beautiful tints, ready to mix and use by the addition of cold water, and with full directions on each package. Every package of genuine Alabastine has cross and circle printed in red.

Better write us for hand-made color designs and special suggestions. Give us your decorative problems and let us help you work them out.

WILL MOVE TO

MELROSE PARK

Paul Lucas, Jr., who recently had an auction sale on his father's farm near Alpine, is going to move to Melrose Park. He had intended to move to Mokena, but could not find a dwelling for rent here. This shows that Mokena could grow if more buildings were to be had. A real live town could be developed if more dwellings were put up and new people would move in. Perhaps some day some real live real estate man will see the opportunity and grasp it.

ORLAND

Since the Dowd milk plant fire, the village of Orland is beginning to think of better fire protection. More hose and other fire apparatus will be purchased by the village soon.

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Four Reasons Why You Should Buy Your Ford Car This Month

I

The unprecedented demand for Ford Cars throughout the winter months has taken the entire output of the Ford plants working at capacity, indicating that the demand this Spring will be far in excess of the number of Ford Cars that can possibly be built.

II

January was the tenth consecutive month in which retail deliveries exceeded 100,000 Ford Cars and Trucks. Requirements for February, the month when preparations are already under way for Spring business called for 148,407 Cars and Trucks -- more than 24,000 in excess of the number we can possibly produce.

III

Ford dealers in many parts of the country are already finding it necessary to specify future delivery dates on Ford Products, because there are no reserve stocks to draw from.

IV

Your order placed now will protect you against delay or disappointment later on. It is the only way you can be assured of reasonably prompt delivery.

We consider it important to give you these facts, so that if you are planning to purchase a Ford Car, Truck or Fordson Tractor this Spring or Summer you can list your order at once and take advantage our dealer's first opportunity to make delivery.

Alabaster Vases in King Tut's Tomb

London Times—New York Times copyright by arrangement with Earl of Carnarvon. Cluster of alabaster unguent vases of unique type, just as they were discovered in the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen, the ancient Egyptian king, when it was opened. The vases still contain unguents which give off a faint odor.
